PREFACE.

The Minnesota Historical Society takes great pleasure in offering herewith, to its patrons and members, the first printed catalogue of its library, believing that it will fill a want that has long been felt by those desiring to consult our collections, and avail themselves of its literary treasures. And while the importance and value of such a desideratum has been seriously felt by us, as much as by anyone, for years, and notwithstanding we were making every effort to accomplish it, yet many obstacles tended to delay its completion until the present time, as will be gathered from the following statement:

The Minnesota Historical Society was organized in November, 1849, under a charter granted by the territorial legislature, on Oct. 12, 1849. For several years the Society did not have much more than a nominal existence, having almost no library, a very meagre income, and no suitable apartments, but had issued several numbers of its collections. During the hard times (1857–'62), and the war period, it quite died out. In 1864 it was resuscitated, and commenced a new career, since which time its work has gone steadily forward. Yet in 1867 it had only 1,155 bound volumes. Soon after, an enlarged annual appropriation from the State enabled it to increase its library somewhat more rapidly, but it has only been quite recently that it has had sufficient means for its purposes, and has also labored under the disadvantage of unsuitable apartments. Moreover, it had but one working officer, nearly all of whose time was absorbed by other duties, leaving him no opportunity to construct the catalogue proper. For several years a "slip catalogue" was made to answer; but in 1880, the library had increased so much, a "card catalogue" was deemed a necessity.

Unfortunately, about this period (March 1, 1881), occurred the disastrous fire at the capitol, in which our rooms were located, which seriously injured our library, and left us in great confusion for over two years, during which time our library had only a place of storage, dark and unwholesome at that, and no appliances for library work. It was not until 1883 that we had our bibliothecal treasures again securely housed and properly arranged in permanent and commodious apartments in the new capitol, and were in a position to resume our forward progress. We were very fortunate, at this juncture, in securing the services of Miss Mary B. Merriam, a professional cataloguer of the highest skill, who had done good work in Eastern libraries for a number of years. Miss M. came to St. Paul at our request, and for two years was steadily engaged in preparing our catalogue, completing it in the fall of 1885. At the time she ceased her labors, 32,195 "cards" were written and placed in the case of drawers used for that purpose. Her work was done with the highest skill, and the Society now found itself, for the first time, in possession of one of the best constructed and most thorough catalogues, fully equal to that of any library in the United States. It now contains 37,500 cards.

The ultimate printing of the catalogue had always been an inseparable part of our plan, and the accomplishment of that result was now actively pressed. At first, we were delayed by want of means. Then, the copying of the cards on sheets for the use of the printers consumed some time, as this required 2,500 closely written sheets of foolscap. And finally, the printing of such a large work was necessarily slow, and has consumed over a year. But we are at last able to offer the work complete.

The system adopted for this catalogue is perhaps the simplest and easiest that can be devised, so as to be understood by the general reader who has not much bibliographical skill. Authors and subjects are both interspersed in regular alphabetical order. The author's titles are generally given in full under his own name, and the work is again catalogued, under the subject, somewhat condensed, but with sufficient particulars to identify it; many, indeed, being thus catalogued several times, under as many heads. Thus any student may, with little trouble, find what work he desires, or see what the library contains, on any required subject.

All the more important works in the library, especially works relating to American history, have been carefully "analyzed," thus bringing into use many valuable single papers and essays, which would not otherwise have been available for use. Some large and important sets of works were received quite recently, after the printing was in hand, and, rather than further delay the work, were deferred to be included in a supplement. These supplements will be printed from time to time, as the growth of the library renders necessary.

Our library contains at present 14,421 bound volumes, and 13,593 pamphlets, or 28,014 titles in all, every one of which is carefully and clearly catalogued, and by means of the shelf number, any work, no matter how slight in itself, can be found by the Librarian at a moment's notice. It is a good working library on all subjects relating to America. Some of its departments are quite complete. On Minnesota, it contains almost every known work, while its collection relating to the Northwest is also very full. On American history, biography, geography, statistics, etc., it will be found very rich. On American politics and national questions, several thousand pamphlets, mostly bound, give the student a mine of material to explore. The revolutionary period has a large collection, as also our recent civil war. On American genealogy, one of our specialties, our collection ranks among the best in the country. We have also several hundred atlases and maps, many of them very rare. Another department that receives our special care is our collection of Minnesota newspapers, which now numbers 1,300 volumes, a priceless treasury of materials for the history of the State. The library is valued (if any value can be set on such a collection) at $50,000.

This library is free to all (for reference, no books being loaned), and an experienced librarian is constantly in attendance, to give aid to investigators, for no catalogue can be so complete that readers can dispense with the aid of an expert who can give them suggestions based on his own familiarity with the collection.

We believe that there are few, if any, of the historical societies of this country, that have, at our age, and embarrassed by so many obstacles as we have had to encounter, succeeded in fulfilling their objects as well as this one.

But while we feel a just pride at the completeness of our library, and its value and usefulness, we are, at the same time, aware of its serious deficiencies. These are, however, the results of its youth, and of our want of means, etc., and will be remedied as it grows older. One object of this catalogue, indeed, is to show what we lack, as well as what we have, so that our generous friends, who have always been so thoughtful of our wants, may aid us in filling the "gaps" indicated.

This Society has published five volumes of collections, containing a great amount of material for the history of Minnesota and the Northwest. These volumes can be had either by purchase or exchange. A descriptive list of them will be sent to any one applying to the librarian.

With such a good beginning as we have made, we are justified in hoping for a future of greater prosperity for this Society. Among other projects is a fire-proof library building, in which to store and properly arrange our literary treasures. We already have a piece of ground, eligibly situated, on which to build it, and anticipate that, at no very distant day, we may secure a fund to erect and furnish it. With this want filled, the Minnesota Historical Society will become one of the most useful and successful institutions of its kind in the Union, and one which our citizens should feel proud of, and give a generous support to.

JOHN FLETCHER WILLIAMS,
Librarian.

Also, Stone Axes, Spears, Arrow-Heads, Pottery, or other relics of the prehistoric races.

In brief, everything that, by the most liberal construction, can illustrate the History of Minnesota or its people; its early settlement; its progress, or present condition, which will be of value or interest to succeding generations. All works presented to our Library will be acknowledged in our biennial reports, and will be carefully preserved for the use of the public of the State.

Nearly every gentleman accumulates at his office or home, a great number of pamphlets. Do not sell them to the paper mill, but send them to
